Lejb Fogelman is the face of legal advice on mergers and acquisitions in Poland. And this market has been active recently.

Acquisitions in the banking sector have attracted most interest and Fogelman’s Greenberg Traurig was involved in each of these transactions. The Warsaw office advised BNP Paribas on the acquisition of Raiffeisen Bank Polska's core business, Deutsche Bank on the sale of its Polish operations to Bank Zachodni WBK (now Santander Bank Polska) and Société Générale on the sale of Euro Bank to Millenium (transaction in progress).

According to Mergermarket, in 2018 Greenberg Traurig was involved in transactions worth more than USD 2.8 billion in total.

Fogelman's position is determined above all by his is experience (and his ability to maintain a healthy distance). “I wasn’t just a bystander, I also had the opportunity to take an active role in this great change,” (economic transformation – Ed.) he said in an interview with the DGP Magazine. “Because you sold half of Poland,” the journalist quipped. “More ...” Fogelman laughed in response.”
